We think we want sex. It's not only about sex. It's intimacy we want, to be touched, looked at, admired, smiled at. Laugh with somebody, feel safe, feel like someone's really got you. That's what we crave.

I hope you take this moment to remind yourself that you are worthy and you are loved, with or without someone else. I hope you treat yourself kindly and with love for the rest of this journey. And no matter what you encounter along this path, I hope you trust that you are good enough, brave enough and strong enough to be all that you are meant to be.

Let someone love you just the way you are - as flawed as you might be, as unattractive as you sometimes feel, and as unaccomplished as you think you are. To believe that you must hide all the parts of you that are broken, out of fear that someone else is incapable of loving what is less than perfect, is to believe that sunlight is incapable of entering a broken window and illuminating a dark room.

Want To Try BDSM?

That's awesome! Mixing it up and exploring your sexuality is fantastic, fun and healthy!
But before you run off to set up your own Red Room of Pain, remember kink should always be...

Safe

Improper bondage can cause serious damage.
Only ever use ties designed for BDSM, make sure you can get loose quickly, and don't tie too tight.

Sane

Make sure you know your limits and trust your partner!
Fantasies are great, but in real life, it's important to be sure everyone knows what they're getting into.

Consensual

Scared? In pain? Uncertain?
Remember, even Christian isn't psychic!
Make sure you can always stop something if you're uncomfortable - even if you're in the middle of it!

MYTH:

People who are into BDSM are sick f*cks.

FACT:

Actually, they're psychologically healthy.

People who prefer bondage and sadomasochism (or other unusual sex) are more extroverted and open to new experiences, and also less neurotic, anxious, and paranoid than their "vanilla" counterparts. They are also more secure in their relationships. Researchers speculate that it might be because they're satisfied with their sex lives.

Every good girl comes with a bad girl side. It just takes a man to awaken the beast.

Some may look at this and see the man in a submissive or subservient role. Remember that being a Dominant means taking care of your submissive in every way, even little ways like fixing the strap her her shoe. To paraphrase a famous quote: You are never so Dominant as when you stoop to care for your submissive.

I saw an attractive man spank his kid at McDonalds after he threw his fries on the ground, so I also threw mine on the ground.

Ladies would you allow your man to put you in this chair 🪑????

I did the house work and it wasn't good enough so he flung everything I had missed on the floor then shouted at me like I was a child it made me feel like a child
I flung my collar (I'm a submissive) across the room because I was angry at him and now he is refusing to give it back says I don't deserve it and he doesn't want to see me today 😞 which has made me feel ten times worse

Signs of a fantastic Dom

We always talk about "signs of a terrible Dom" so let's talk about some signs of an actually good Dom

1. They ask you about your day: They show compassion and actually want to listen about how your day went
2. They ALWAYS want to keep fields of communication open: Whether you're in the middle of a kinky-as-fuck scene or you two are in a heated argument, the means of communication is ALWAYS open. Once you give your safe word, IT IS DONE
3. Aftercare is a top priority. No matter what this is for you in particular, they put a lot of emphasis on aftercare (cuddling, movie watching, bath time, etc.)
4. They aren't afraid to scold you when you actually mess up. Sometimes we fuck up, both with our dynamics or we screwed up something at work or school. Doms will scold you, put also help cheer you up and might even offer ways to make it positive
5. Sex might be apart of the dynamic, but it's not the focus. I get the fact some people get involved with other BDSM partners for the sole reason of sex, but outside of those VERY SPECIFIC DYNAMICS, sex is NOT the sole focus. It might be a fun "add on", but it's NOT the primary objective (penetrative sex or other forms of sex acts).
6. They are concerned for your safety, but don't overdo it. They want you safe, but don't take it to the paranoid level where they need to track every little thing you do.
7. They respect your privacy. EVERYONE has secrets ("skeletons in your closest"), even among romantic partners who have been partners for a long time, people have stuff they just don't feel comfortable confessing every little thing in their life. A respectful Dom understands this and doesn't need to go spying on you or attempt to invade your privacy (track internet history, track phone usage, track where you've been, etc.)
8. They trust you. A Dom who doesn't trust you will purposely try to fuck up the relationship/dynamic, they will show severe jealousy, and other negative aspects. A Dom that trusts you will respect YOU as a person as well as you to keep your word on different things.
9. When disagreements happen, they use constructive language. There is not a healthy relationship on this earth that is 100% argument/disagreement free. However, whenever these do happen, it is NOT a "me against you" style argument ("I WON THE ARGUMENT", none of that). It is done in a way with minimal accusatory/hurtful statements
10. They respect your hard limits. Doms know hard limits don't mean "convince me". They know to stay the fuck away from hard limits with a ten foot freaking pole.
